4. Can I have alcohol on my lunch breaks?

No. Employees are expected to be fit for duty and remain so for the duration they carry out their duties or may be expected to carry out their duties. Use of alcohol or any other recreational substance is prohibited in the workplace or during any period which the employee is carrying out their duties as outlined in PS 805 Substance Use and the Workplace policy.

5. Can employees bring recreational marijuana into the workplace when it's legal?

No. Possession of recreational marijuana is prohibited as outlined in PS 805 Substance Use and the Workplace policy.

6. What if I smoke marijuana when it becomes legal?

The Government of Saskatchewan expects employees to come to work fit for duty, which includes not using alcohol or recreational marijuana for the duration of any period they carry out duties, or may be expected to carry out duties as outlined in PS 805 Substance Use in the Workplace policy.

7. Is the Government of Saskatchewan doing drug testing?

The Government of Saskatchewan does not currently have a policy or process to support drug or alcohol testing of employees.

8. Will I be disciplined if I voluntarily ask for help for a substance abuse problem?

Voluntarily asking for help to overcome a substance use problem is not grounds for discipline. Employees are encouraged to seek help. The Employee and Family Assistance Program is available for confidential, short-term counselling and to assist in identifying resources to address substance abuse related concerns.

9. What if I suspect one of my employees is under the influence of a substance?

Employees must be fit for duty while they are at work. If an employee reports for work and their manager suspects they are unfit for duty, err on the side of caution and remove the employee from the workplace immediately. Managers should contact their ministry Human Resource Business Partner for guidance.

10. What if I suspect one of my employees is struggling with a substance use disorder or addiction?

If a manager notices that drugs or alcohol appear to be interfering with an employee's performance or their well-being is affected, they should contact their ministry Human Resource Business Partner for guidance.

If you have any questions, please contact your Human Resource Service Centre by phone at 1-877-852- 5808 or 306-798-0000 or by email at hrsc@gov.sk.ca.
